Tszyu Breaks Losing Streak with TKO of Spencer, Sets Stage for Thurman Clash Tim Tszyu ended his two-fight losing streak with a fourth-round technical knockout of Joey Spencer on Saturday night at the Newcastle Entertainment Centre in Australia. The fight was competitive through the third round, but things took a turn for the worse for Spencer when he was hurt by a heavy right hand from Tszyu. ###ARTICLEBerlanga's Blistering Win Over Gonzalez: A Cruising Victory for the Cruiserweight Contender Edgar Berlanga's dominant performance against Jonathan Gonzalez-Ortiz was a stark reminder of his size, power, and skillset. The 35-year-old Gonzalez-Ortiz looked anything but prepared for the fight, with a physique that seemed to have been lifted straight from Tyson Fury's era. The first round was a masterclass in Berlanga's devastating power, as he dropped Gonzalez-Ortiz with a left hook and followed up with a right hand that sent his opponent crashing to the canvas. The referee Chris Young had no choice but to stop the fight at 2:31 of the first round. Berlanga's weight looked suspect for the bout, coming in at light heavyweight at 169.6 lbs, which he claimed was due to illness. However, his performance suggested that he had been struggling with weight for months since his loss to Canelo Alvarez last September. Post-fight, Berlanga expressed his intention to move up to super middleweight and take on the best in the division. "I started seeing his eyes were getting swollen and stuff. My team brought this guy to me and I took it," he said in an interview with DAZN Boxing. Berlanga's victory was met with praise from his promoter, Eddie Hearn, who expressed excitement about his next move. However, the boxer himself had a different message for Caleb Plant, whom he has been linked to in the past. "F Plant," Berlanga said, responding to Hearn's comments. The win marked a significant step forward for Berlanga, who is now being touted as one of the top contenders at cruiserweight. His performance will undoubtedly keep him at the forefront of discussions about his future fights. Josh Taylor's unbeaten streak came to an end as he suffered a 12-round unanimous decision loss against Ekow Essuman at the SSE Hydro in Glasgow, Scotland. Taylor, who had won his first four fights by knockout, struggled with Essuman's relentless pressure and was left looking tired after six rounds. The Scottish boxer's cut over his left eye in the seventh round added to his woes as he clung onto Essuman throughout the final few minutes of the bout. The judges' scores were 116-113, 116-112, and 115-113 in favor of Essuman, marking Taylor's third consecutive loss. Another notable result from the evening came as Moses Itauma knocked out Mike Balogun in the second round of their scheduled 10-round heavyweight clash. Itauma dropped Balogun three times before the referee intervened at the 0:46 mark of round two. However, Itauma's performance raised concerns about his ability to deal with top-level opponents, particularly those with longer reach. His promoters may need to reassess his matchmaking strategy in the near future. We see Callum Smith has won his fight tonight. Benavidez is looking for the biggest fights, but he can't beat Smith so now him and Smith are going to have a great fight in future. “We’re sitting nice and pretty with all the belts at 175 lbs,” said Hearn about Dmitry Bivol, who defeated Artur Beterbiev tonight to become undisputed light heavyweight champion. Joshua Buatsi’s loss against Callum Smith is very unfortunate for him because he wanted to be the champion. But he will come back stronger in future. The True boxing champions – July Rankings Update: The Transnational Boxing Rankings Board has removed Jaime Munguia, #4 at Super Middleweight, from his ranking due to his PED issues. This is an action you can count on us to make. We may wait a week or two to make sure it is the right move, but we will remove anyone clearly cheating in this most dangerous sport. Bektemir Melikuziev enters in at #10. Floyd Schofield very nearly debuted in the Lightweight rankings at #8 or #9 but missed by one vote. He devastates former contender Tevin Farmer with a first-round TKO; keep in mind, the once formidable Farmer has not been stopped since 2012 when former contender Jose Pedraza stopped him in 8 rounds. Denys Berinchyk is bumped out. This week saw several high-profile bouts go down, showcasing the skill and determination of these athletes. In the Middleweight division, Carlos Adames took to the ring against Hamzah Sheeraz, putting on a performance that would leave even the toughest critics impressed. Meanwhile, Sebastian Fundora put his skills to the test against Bahkram Murtazaliev, a fight that would ultimately prove to be a thrilling one for the fans. The Welterweight division also saw some exciting action, as Jaron Ennis looked to build on his impressive record against Brian Norman Jr. But it was the Lightweight bout between Lamont Roach and Gervonta Davis that truly stole the show, with both fighters giving it their all in a battle for the ages. In the Featherweight division, Angelo Leo put on a dominant display against Rafael Espinoza, leaving many wondering if he's truly unbeatable. And in the Junior Bantamweight division, Jesse Rodriguez continued his impressive run against an opponent who was no match for him. With so many talented fighters vying for the top spot in their respective divisions, it's anyone's game when it comes to predicting which boxer will emerge victorious next. Will Carlos Adames continue his winning streak? Can Jaron Ennis keep his momentum going? Or perhaps Lamont Roach and Gervonta Davis will put on another showstopper fight? One thing is for sure: the world of professional boxing has never been more exciting, with new fighters emerging all the time to challenge the best of the best. And fans couldn't be happier. The recent boxing event held at the Prudential Center in Newark, New Jersey, witnessed several exciting matches with some notable victories and technical knockout wins. Vito 'White Majic' Mielnicki Jr., who boasts a record of 21-1-1 with 12 knockouts, faced off against Poland's Kamil Gardzielik (19-1, 4 KOs) in the main event. Mielnicki dominated the fight from start to finish, winning all ten rounds by unanimous decision. The turning point came in the third round when Mielnicki landed a solid right punch that dropped Garzielik for an eight-count, drawing blood from his nose. This marked a significant shift in momentum as Mielnicki continued to assert his control with his jab and body work throughout the remainder of the fight. The judges' scores reflected Mielnicki's dominance, with all three scoring him 100-89 on their cards. In the co-feature match, middleweight Jahi Tucker (15-1-1, 6 KOs) faced Lorenzo 'Truck' Simpson (15-3, 9 KOs). Although Simpson landed a few good shots in the early rounds, Tucker's superior conditioning and punching power eventually took its toll on his opponent. By the tenth round, Simpson was visibly fatigued and was unable to mount any significant offense against Tucker's relentless onslaught. Tucker won by unanimous decision with scores of 96-94, 97-93, and 97-93. Another notable match saw heavyweight Damian 'Polish Hussar' Knyba (16-0, 10 KOs) take on Marcin 'Misiek' Siwy (25-1-1, 12 KOs). The bout went the full ten rounds, but in the end, it was Knyba's superior technical skill that secured his victory. A clash of heads caused a nasty cut above Siwy's left eyebrow, which worsened as the fight progressed. In the eighth round, the referee intervened to stop the contest due to the severity of the cut. Knyba improved his unbeaten streak to 16 wins with this TKO victory. The evening also saw Dwyke 'The Genius' Flemmings Jr., (11-0, 10 KOs) secure a quick knockout win over Demian 'Popi' Fernandez (15-7, 5 KOs) in the first round of their scheduled eight-round bout. Flemmings dropped Fernandez not once but twice with body shots before the referee stopped the contest. In another one-round fight, heavyweight Norman Neely (16-1, 11 KOs) scored a knockout win over James Willis (6-2-1, 5 KOs). A big right punch in the final minute of the first round left Willis reeling, prompting the referee to step in and end the contest. These wins marked significant victories for the boxers involved, showcasing their skills and endurance within the sport. ###Boxing Results: Lee Dominates Araujo, Contreras Wins Unanimous Decision, Elliott Beats Ashe in Four-Round Fights Willis thought so.
